

PLOS Early Career Travel Award Program

Experience in presenting research findings and participating in the scientific dialogue are important aspects to the professional development of researchers early in their careers. In support of their growth as effective communicators, PLOS is pleased to announce a travel award program exclusively for Early Career Researchers that provides funding to attend a scientific conference.

If YOU are:

1. A presenting author at a conference taking place between August 1, 2015 – December 31, 2015, AND
2. An author on an article published in any PLOS journal prior to/on the date of application, AND
3. Currently part of a graduate program or have received a graduate degree within the last five years

...you may be eligible to apply for the PLOS Early Career Travel Award Program and receive $500 for conference registration and/or travel expenses.

Submit your application today!

Application deadline: June 30, 2015

www.plos.org/travelawards